EXECUTORS' NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

In the estate of Cortland Homer Wartman, deceased.

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Chapter 121, of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1914, Section 56, and Amending Acts, that all persons having any claims or demands against the estate of Cortland Homer Wartman, late of the Town of Napanee, in the County of Lennox and Addington, dentist, deceased, who died on or about the 31st day of July, A. D., 1916, are required to deliver or send by post prepaid to U. M. Wilson, Napanee, Ontario, solicitor for Emma Wartman, executrix of the last will and testament of the said Cortland Homer Wartman, deceased, on or before the 7th DAY OF OCTOBER, A. D., 1916, their Christian and surnames, addresses and descriptions, with full particulars of their claims or demands fully verified, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them.

And further take notice that after the said 7th day of October, A. D., 1916, the said executrix may proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate amongst the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims or demands of which she shall then have received notice, and will not be responsible for the said assets, or any part thereof so distributed, to any person or persons of whose claims or demands she shall not have received notice at the time of the distribution thereof.

U. M. WILSON,
Solicitor for the said Executrix.
Dated this 12th day of September, 1916.

to assist in the preservation of material indicated above, for otherwise making good the losses and placing formations in the field will be rendered impossible."

This grave admission was made before the recent furious renewal of the offensive on the western front, and at a time when German press correspondents were telling their readers that the Allied attacks had failed. During the past month the Allied artillery fire has greatly increased in volume, and in reply to it the Germans have been compelled to expend their ammunition on an unprecedented scale. They have lost many guns also, and have had an even greater number destroyed. In addition to all this they have had to supply heavy artillery to meet a new foe in Roumania. It is probable that the growing strain has been met by the dispersion of the vast parks of artillery gathered around Verdun, the siege of which is at an end.

On the British front Wednesday there was hostile artillery activity in the Somme region. Rain fell heavily, there was no infantry activity, and the general situation remains unchanged. Over one hundred prisoners have been taken during the past two days.

The only weak spot in the vast circle of steel the Allies have thrown about the Central Powers is on the new Roumanian front. Von Mackensen is trying to crush Roumania, and not merely to prevent her from occupying Transylvania and attacking Bulgaria. In the Dobrudja a large Bulgar-German army has won a number of important victories. It has now met what Berlin speaks of as "hastily brought up reinforcements." The enemy, it is said, is "defending his positions with great stubbornness. The hastily-brought-up reinforcements, which will probably prevent a disastrous defeat of the Russo-Roumanian army, were doubtless drawn from the Transylvania sphere of operations. There the Germans sent to prevent an inundation of Hungary by a Slavic-Roumanian wave have begun to come into action. With their aid the Austrians have defeated a body of Roumanian troops near Hoetzing, in the southwestern Transylvanian Alps, have recaptured the town of Petrovany and reoccupied the Vulcan Pass. That door is shut again, but it will take a good many Germans to drive the Roumanians out of the eastern Transylvania, which is firmly in the grip of the army of occupation. The situation on the entire Roumanian front is far from satisfactory, and will so remain until General Sarrail, by a smashing defeat of the Bulgars on the Saloniki line, forces them to turn from the Danube to Macedonia.

That the Bulgars will fight for Monastir is the opinion of some correspondents at Saloniki. Others assert that they are already pillaging it before evacuation. The Serbs from the east and the French from the south are pushing forward, and are now within a few miles of the defensive positions taken up by the Bulgars in the plain to the south of Monastir. The French have cleaned up Florina. In the operation they have to kill a lot of Bulgars who had taken refuge in houses which they had turned into forts and defended with savage tenacity. The French have been dropping bombs on Monastir from aeroplanes, and this may hasten materially the retirement of the Bulgars.

Greece appears to be making a case against Germany on a charge of abducting and forcibly detaining Greek army corps. That is a fairly good reason for going to war, particularly as there is not much to be gained by it. The Bulgars will yield to the demand of the Government and ship their army corps to Athens.

CANADIANS' REAR SHELLED.

Wounded Canadians Say British Artillery is Heavier Than Foe's.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Members of a party of wounded Canadians who arrived at a hospital near London Monday night narrated incidents of the Somme fighting, illustrating in a measure the different nature of the warfare in which Canadians are now engaged from that to which they had been tied down for the previous twelve months.

As already reported, the Germans are confining their artillery nowadays against the Canadians mostly to high explosives.

Three Canadians lying in one ward had pretty much the same tale, although each man was laid out at a different time and place. One private from Vancouver had no fewer than ten wounds in his legs. The Germans, he said, were putting in shells fast. Like the rest of his comrades, he was then in the front line standing in a trench. A shell came close back of the trench and buried two of his nearest comrades. One of the two was completely covered and the other buried up to the neck.

"A corporal began digging for the men completely buried," he went on, "and I went for the man whose head was just out. I had to scrape and dig while lying on my stomach and got him pretty well out. A stretcher bearer was right behind me waiting to attend him when another shell laid out the stretcher bearer completely, and laid me out with these wounds in the leg. I had to give up digging and lost myself for a bit. When darkness came, I crawled off and managed to reach the headquarters' dressing station half a mile away. After daybreak I was carried away under a white flag with other Canadians, who had had a similar experience.

"The Germans land only one shell in the front line for ten that go now into the supports, presumably to stop reinforcements being sent forward. The enemy artillery is heavy but ours is five times heavier."

Canadians in Attack on Thiepval.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—Despatches reached here confirm the brilliant capture of Mouquet farm by the Canadian troops. This was thought by the Germans to be an impregnable redoubt, but it fell before the men from Canada. When the details have been received and the story written it will rank as one of the most glorious feats in military history. Nothing could stop the onrush of the Canadians, and importance of the capture cannot be overestimated.

That the losses will be heavy is certain, but the reports received indicate that the losses of the Germans opposed to them were far greater.

The area around Mouquet Farm was given to the Canadians as theirs to conquer. It was to be their part in the greatest battle so far of the war. There was no faltering. They simply did what was expected of them.

The work has cleared the way for the attack on Thiepval on their left, which is also considered by the Germans as impregnable. FLORINA HAS FALLEN "Southern Gate" to Monastir Taken by the French.

Monastir is the Objective of the Serb- bian Army Which is Eager to Re- venge Betrayal by Bulgaria—Bul- gar Right Was Easily Swept Back by Irresistible Onrush of Serbs, French, and Russians.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The entire Bulgarian right wing in Macedonia is in the gravest peril of being cap- tured or annihilated by the Franco- Russo-Serb forces forming the Allies' left.

Monastir, the chief Bulgarian base of support in Macedonia, is menaced by an iron ring which is being swiftly drawn tighter and tighter, threatening to throttle the defending army in its clutch.

The French big guns are keeping up an incessant drumfire against the Bulgarian centre between the Vardar and Lake Doiran, the defenders' guns replying vigorously.

The Serbs during the last 24 hours again defeated the Bulgarians in battles before Vetenik and Kajmak- calan, east of the Czerna River, according to Sunday's statement from Gen. Sarrail's headquarters at Sal- lonica. They also drove the Bulgars over the Brod River, north-west of Lake Ostrovo. The defenders are "powerfully entrenched" on the right bank of the river, according to the official report.

Meanwhile the Franco-Russian forces forming the link between the allied left and centre are pushing their pursuit of the Bulgarians toward Florina. Their advance guards have arrived before the town, but it is still held by the Bulgarians, though its capture is expected hourly.

Seventeen miles to the north of Florina lies Monastir, the important Macedonian city, the possession of which has for decades been one of the bones of contention between the Bulgars and Serbs. It was taken by the Bulgarians last fall, after terrible fighting, and has been formidably fortified during the past twelve months. The Bulgarians are expected to make a desperate stand to hold it, while the Serbians fighting on their own soil, will bend might and main to take it and thus clear the path for the reconquest of their kingdom. They are led by the Serbian heir-apparent, Prince Alexander, who has sworn to avenge Bulgaria's betrayal of the Slav cause."

Monastir lost, the Bulgars would be exposed to a flanking attack from the right, for a strong Italian force in Southern Albania is eagerly awaiting a chance to aid from that side in the Macedonian campaign and thus establish a claim for the long coveted "windows on the Adriatic." As long as Monastir is safe, it acts as a blocking stone to a junction of the Italians with the Allies.

Sunday Serbian War Office an- nouncement foreshadowed the capture of Florina by stating "the Serbians have already descended into the Florina Plains."

Powerful as were the first line de- fenses of the Bulgarian right, it was swept back with comparative ease by the embittered dash of the Serbs during the last five days. An interesting psychological factor is that Colonel Lelakis, who is now at Salonica, says the correspondent, declares that Commander Hadjopoulos of the Kavala garrison, announced to the officers there that Field Marshal von Hindenburg has assured him that the Greek army had been made prisoner as a result of Bulgarian demand. Former Premier Venizelos wept on learning that the colors of a certain regiment at Kavala had fallen into the hands of the Bulgarians.

the eminently dash of the Serbs during the last five days. An interesting psychological factor is that when General Sarrail some months ago assigned the Serbians to the left wing the Bulgarian general staff felt considerable relief. From that quarter they expected the least danger, for the Serbian army was generally considered irreparably shattered and its spirit broken. The Serbian positions were regarded as defensive rather than offensive. The Bulgarian line was formidably fortified in anticipation of drum fire from the French big guns, but open infantry battles were not looked for.

Thus the spirited Serbian onrush when the signal for the Allied offensive was given took the Bulgars by surprise. How precipitate their retreat has been is indicated by the fact that the pursuers captured thirty-two guns, many, as yet uncounted prisoners, and huge quantities of material. Tremendous losses were inflicted on the Bulgars. The Serbian headquarters report says, one regiment alone losing two-thirds of its effectives.

DRIVING ON LEMBERG.

Russians Have Resumed Advance on Galician City.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Russians have resumed the drive on Lemberg with full vigor. The Petrograd War Office announced Sunday night that the Russians have captured Teuton positions south of Brzezany, 46 miles south-east of Lemberg, taking 14 officers and 557 Turkish soldiers.

In an encircling movement against Halicz, 60 miles south of the Galician capital, the Russians have taken 3,174 German prisoners, including 34 officers. The fall of Halicz is expected hourly.

Simultaneously with the resumption of the campaign against Lemberg the Russians took the offensive in Volhynia, on the whole front south of Pinsk.

The German War Office stated Sunday afternoon that the Muscovite attacks, launched "morning, afternoon, and evening" on a front of twelve and a half miles, with "strong forces and in numerous waves," were repulsed everywhere. The Russian losses are termed "monstrous" in official reports from the fighting ground.

Berlin asserts officially that the Russian assaults between the Sereth and the Styrya (Galician front south-east of Lemberg) were equally fruitless.

A slight withdrawal of Archduke Karl Franz Josef's front on the Narovka River is admitted officially by both Berlin and Vienna.

The Milky Way.

The Milky Way is an irregular luminous belt that encircles the celestial sphere and has the general shape of a great circle, inclined at an angle of 63 degrees to the equinoctial. Its luminosity is due to the myriads of stars or suns composing it, many of which have been revealed to us by means of the telescope. It varies in width from 4 to 20 degrees and at one point of its course splits up into two nearly parallel branches of unequal brightness, which do not reunite for a distance of 150 degrees.

Farcical Roles.

An American actor of versatile talents was asked recently what type or role is most difficult to play. "The farcical," he answered. "To enact farce successfully one must play with deadly seriousness. Half the effect is gone once you begin to act your part lightly. The constant strain to maintain this mock seriousness is, of course, exhausting, since you have no outlet for your emotions."

STUFFING THE KING

A Dusky Kongo Monarch Who Fairly Reveled In Roast Pig.

HE WAS KIND TO HIS WIVES.

Anything on the Menu That Didn't Tempt His Dainty Taste Was Passed to Them, but When His Favorite Dish Came on It Was All His Very Own.

During his residence in the Kongo town of San Salvador John H. Weeks had many strange experiences, which he relates in his book, "Among the Primitive Bakongo," but one of the most entertaining pictures that he draws of the strange habits and customs of the people depicts the king, whose naivete and childish guilelessness are in strong contrast to the characteristics of his European contemporaries.

Occasionally, says Mr. Weeks, we invited him to dinner, and the piece de resistance was a sucking pig, which in those days we could buy for a shilling's worth of cloth or beads. Although his house was 400 yards away, he always came in his state hammock, carried by six of his headmen. Fortunately the headmen were strong and in the prime of life; otherwise the king's weight would have taxed them too much.

The hammock was of native cotton, grown, dyed and woven in a neighboring village. It was covered with red cloth adorned with tassels and bells, and a canopy was arranged to shield the rider from the sun. As there were no clocks in the palace, we asked our guest to come at sunset, and no sooner was the sun below the horizon than we heard the shouts of the people as they accompanied the king's hammock to the station.

As he got nearer we could hear the tinkling of the ferret bells on the hammock, the hurried, heavy breathing of the hammock carriers and their short, sharp sentences of direction to one another. They were not at all sorry to lower the hammock at our door, where we stood ready to receive and welcome him, who, although black, had come in the most kingly manner he knew and was certainly very dignified in most of his ways and words.

The boys quickly put the dinner on the table, and the king eyed every dish hungrily. I said to him one day when I was visiting him in his courtyard and we were both in a joking mood, "Do you know what the poorer class of English boys do when they are invited to a feast?"

"No," he said. And as he saw me hesitate he asked, "Well, what do they do?"

"Why, they eat very little all day," I replied, "so as to have plenty of room for the feast."

The old man rolled with laughter, snapped his fingers, slapped his thighs, and tears came from his eyes as he said: "Why, white man, that is what I do, but I did not know that anybody else was cute enough to think of that. But, Mfumu Weekisi, I am smarter than those white boys, for I don't eat anything all day when I am coming to take dinner with you at sunset." After that I could understand the hungry look in his eyes as he watched the dishes put on the table.

Native provisions of all kinds were very cheap, and by sacrificing one or two tins of preserved goods we were generally successful in working out a menu of six or seven single courses. Soup made of fowl and goat bones, with odd bits of meat and seasoning, a tin of fresh herrings baked or fried, a roast fowl, stewed goat, roast sucking pig and baked rice pudding with stewed papaws were our dishes. Our drinks were lime juice made from fresh limes and coffee grown in the district.

The king would squat on the ground, with a row of five or six favorite wives immediately behind him and the six headmen who carried the hammock standing against the wall. The king would take a few spoonfuls of soup and pass the rest down with a piece of bread to his waiting wives, who would quickly and quietly finish them.

The fish he would eat all up, because it came from the white man's country, while the wives pouted their disappointment. We would give him a liberal share of the fowl, but that was so common that after he had selected the best pieces the rest was finished by the expectant wives.

Goat came next, but was treated with as scant courtesy as that bestowed on the fowl, and meanwhile the old man would turn his eyes repeatedly toward the roasted pig.

When at last that was put before us we piled a plate with a liberal portion, which rapidly disappeared, while all the time his wives were making mouths in the semidarkness. He would grunt assent to more when we asked him, and again we would load his plate. It was the moment for which he had lived all the long hours of that day, for he had heard that the white man had bought a pig for dinner.

As Many Know.

"Can I sell you any thermometers today?"

"No, nor any other day. There is a little person in the kitchen who attends to all that sort of thing. She makes it hot or cold as it suits her."

Had His Preference.

Hospitable Farmer—Now, stranger, sit right down to the table. You are welcome to your dinner, but you'll have to eat what the rest of us do. Stranger—Thanks, but I—er—if it's all the same to you I'll eat what the rest of you don't.

AEROPLANE PROGRESS.

Boat Body Machines Do Not Rake the Air Like Harrows.

The one unmistakable improvement which has been adopted for aeroplanes is a boatlike body in which the aviator sits. No longer does he perch on the lower wing of a biplane and watch the earth drift back between his legs. The boat body was adopted not to spare his emotions or shield his body from the wind, but to enable the machine to plow on with the least possible disturbance of the air. Each plane, each strut, each projection, leaves a wake of its own. A single wake, which marks the easy flowing together of air behind a single body, is better. The modern aeroplane approaches this ideal; the old machine raked the air like a harrow.

That change in form we owe to the scientist and his laboratory. He measured the resisting effect of wires vibrating in the wind, of braces, of fuel tanks, of radiators and of human legs and arms. He found that the sum total was enormous. The aeroplane builder was compelled to abandon his cherished idea that to obtain speed as little surface and bulk as possible should be exposed. He has learned from the scientist that a large correctly designed bulk inclosing passengers, engines, steering wheels and tanks slips through the air more easily than an aggregation of small irregular shapes widely scattered.

Popular Jokes.

The most popular joke which has been published in any language in the history of the world is stated to be that which appeared in an obscure corner of the Punch almanac for 1845. It read, "Advice to persons about to marry—Don't!" It would be interesting to know who was its author. Another, founded on a similar subject, was the "Advice to persons who have fallen in love—Fall out!" One of the most brilliant things that ever appeared in our contemporary was the brief dialogue between an inquiring child and his impatient parent: "What is mind?" "No matter." "What is matter?" "Never mind."—Westminster Gazette.

A Realistic Picture.

A still life by Jan van Huysen in the museum at The Hague was injured, but it is believed that the perpetrator was neither vandal nor thief. The picture represents a basket of fruit on which a number of insects have gathered. On a pale yellow apple, which is the centerpiece in the cluster of fruit, is a large fly, painted so true to nature, so say the officials of the gallery, that the canvas was injured by some one who endeavored to "shoo" it and brought his cane or hand too close to the canvas. "A tribute to the painter's genius," says the letter recording the fact, "for which the work had to suffer."

A Philosopher's Viewpoint.

"I don't expect to fence in many acres of this beautiful old world," says a Georgia philosopher, "but what little ground I gain I hope to make as beautiful as old Adam's possessions were before he ran away with the idea that what he didn't know about the apple

It is with books as with acquaintances. At first we are not sure if we find we agree in a general way, but if we feel a friendly influence of the chief sides of our existence is only upon closer acquaintance that the points of difference parent, and then the valuable conduct lies not in shrill voices at once, as is often the case, but in holding fast to in which we agree and arranging our understanding about in which we differ, without counting wishing to come to an upon them.—Goethe.

A Cargo Hard to Handle

Asphalt is said to be the most difficult cargo for a vessel to unload. Asphalt is taken out of the lakes in Trinidad in a semi-liquid state and by the time the vessel reaches northern port has hardened, unless it is necessary to go into the hold and dig it out with pick and shovel. This takes a vessel carrying such cargo to arrange for a considerable time in port.

BRITISH RECORD OFFICE.

It Has Twenty-five Miles of Shelves Packed With Documents.

Unknown to the millions who pass through the city of London every week, a work of unparalleled magnitude at what is known as the public record office in Chancery lane has been going on for a number of years. In this office there are twenty-five miles of shelves, all full of historical material, going back through the centuries as far as "Domesday Book."

It costs over £20,000 ($130,000) a year to keep up the record office, the keeper of the records being the master of the rolls. The office was established by the public records act in 1838, and the records were taken there from the Tower, the Chapter House, Westminster, the Rolls chapel and elsewhere. Ever since that time the office has been constantly receiving accretions from the law courts, the government departments and various other quarters.

All sorts of records are kept, legal, historical, genealogical, statistical, and so varied are the contents of the office that antiquarian research of almost every kind can be made. There you will find the records of the star chamber and the old wards and liveries. State papers, domestic, colonial and foreign, formerly preserved in the state paper office in Whitehall, are also to be seen there. Usually fifty or sixty students are seen working in the record office every day, and at any time there is the fascinating thought that one of them may make some interesting discovery.—London Tit-Bits.

FULTON'S SUBMARINE.

The Nautilus and Its Then Daring Feats In French Waters.

That Robert Fulton set more store by his submarine plans than any of his other projects or achievements in ship designing is recalled by Farnham Bishop's "Story of the Submarine." It was in Paris, where Fulton had received from Napoleon an advance of 10,000 francs to build a submarine, that his Nautilus was brought to completion.

"On her first trial, on the Seine at Paris, in May, 1801," writes Mr. Bishop, "the Nautilus remained submerged for twenty minutes with Fulton and one other man on board and a lighted candle for them to navigate by. This consumed too much air, however, so a small glass window was placed in the conning tower and gave light enough instead. Four men were then able to remain under for an hour."

"After that Fulton made the first compressed air tank, a copper globe containing a cubic foot of compressed air, by drawing on which the submarine's crew could stay under for six hours. This was in the harbor of Brest, where the Nautilus had been taken overland."

"A trial attack was made on an old hulk, which was successfully blown up. The submarine also proved its ability either to furl its sails and dive quickly out of sight or to cruise for a considerable distance on the surface. Once it sailed for seventy miles down the English channel."

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. FRANK KNOBL, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. Yost, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. CLEMENTINA DUERRING, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it will be confidential.

Ireland's Golden Age.

There need be no "theory" as to the early culture of Ireland. PROVINCIAL NOTES

A STATEMENT BY N. W. ROWELL

The following statement was made by Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., M.P.P., Leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature on September the 8th before leaving London, England. The Liberal Leader sailed from Liverpool on September the 9th :

"September 16th marks a new era in the industrial and social life of the Province," said Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Leader of the Liberal Opposition in Ontario in speaking to The Globe to day with reference to the coming into operation of the new Ontario Temperance Act. Thousands of our fellow-citizens have given years of unselfish service to secure the coming of this day; others have cheerfully given up for the public good that which they claimed to be their right; and the bill which passed the Legislature without a dissenting voice comes into operation as an expression of deep conviction as well as of the patriotic spirit of the people of the Province. All I have learned from Russia, and all I have seen and learned in France and Great Britain, confirm the wisdom and patriotism of the course pursued in closing all drinking places in Ontario during the war.

"When the war is over, and our gallant soldiers who survive the conflict have returned to their homes, and normal conditions have been re-established, the people of the Province will have an opportunity of saying whether they wish the law to continue, or to revert to former conditions. I am convinced that if the law is well enforced it will be as permanent as our local option laws have proved to be, and the benefits to the whole Province will be as great as or greater than those which have accrued to citizens in local option communities.

"The passing of the law removes from those engaged in the hotel business the civil and social disabilities from which they have hitherto suffered by reason of the bar and I am persuaded that if the law is well enforced the time will come when even those who most strongly oppose the present act will acknowledge that the closing of the drinking places during the war was a wise and patriotic course to pursue."

NEW ONTARIO.

The Settler and the Speculator.

The failure of the Ontario Government to adequately deal with the burning questions arising in the North Country as between the bona fide settler and the land speculator, is causing an upheaval among the hardy sons of the North, which spells defeat for the Government nominees in these northern districts when the voters are next called to the polls. Although the government takes care to feed the rest of the Province with the pap of its own self-satisfaction, the people really concerned, who are sweating and toiling for the benefit of land-hogs, have at last become exasperated and are demanding the clearing out of these exploiters, and more consideration be given by the government to those who are honestly clearing and cultivating their holdings.

An article by the staff correspondent of the Toronto Globe, dated Englehart August 52th, after quoting specific instances of distress and dissatisfaction, concluded with the following striking paragraph :—

SOURCES OF DISCOURSES AND DISCUSSIONS, concluded with the following striking paragraph:—

"SHOULD BE NO QUARTER FOR SPECULATORS."

"What is called for in New Ontario in connection with land settlement is the most liberal treatment of the man who is really trying to make a home for himself—not pauperizing liberality but stimulating liberality, and no quarter for the speculative holder. The man who seeks to profit in idleness from the labor of others is a public enemy who holds vacant land in a new country for the purpose of enriching himself by the increased values accruing as a result of improvements made by real settlers on adjoining lots. No man should be allowed to secure a patent in future until he has made it quite clear that he means to stay with the land for which the deed is given. Where patents have been granted for lands that are neither occupied nor really improved the barnacle owner should be pried loose with the hand-spike of taxation rigorously applied."

This is the policy of the settler, not of a city-bred politicien; and if the members of the Ontario Cabinet do not sit up and take notice and undertake some action along the lines suggested, calamitous results from the point of view of office will be visited upon them by a resentful electorate at the earliest opportunity. The concentration of settlement, an equitable distribution of roads, loans to assist clearing, provision for school sites and fire protection, are crying needs in the North Country. The members of the Ontario Government have had the situation bought home to them; but their minds are concentrated on the best means of obtaining votes rather than on methods of ameliorating conditions in the North.

GREAT MARKETS OF PARIS.

Buyers in the "Halles" May Not Carry Parcels of Any Kind.

There are some queer customs and regulations in the "halles," the great Paris central markets. No buyer is allowed to enter or leave the markets carrying a parcel, however small it may be. To carry parcels is the privilege of the porters of these markets. Quaint figures are they in baggy velvet-trousers, blue striped jerseys and big brimmed, round leather hats. They alone can be employed to convey from the market to the street outside your merchandise, whether it be half a beef or only a good fat hen.

Madame has to help in her purchases market women known as the keepers. These women sit at the entrance to the main division of the markets and for a small fee watch over all purchases brought to them. Many of these "salesladies" are wealthy. A portly dame, a small seller, wears a fine pair of diamonds in her ears and a sparkling solitaire on her ring finger.

Another character at the markets is the "cutter." When a sheep is brought to him by the buyer for half a dozen Paris housekeepers he cuts the animal into six portions and divides it among them. The purchasers draw lots for the best pieces and pay according to value received.—Exchange.

"On the shore of Cape Chatham, the land is retreating at the rate of a foot a year, and the shore of Marthas Vine giving up the fight to the encroaching sea at the rate of three feet every twelve years. While on the southern face of the beach the retreat has been six feet a year, the records

"In its incessant warfare the land and the sea literally take turns hosts and makes them under its command. The boats are shattered from the face are dashed up against it again, hammering others while being worn round as the projectile of big guns. As the process goes on the shells are worn down and until there remains nothing but a strong hold save grains some distant beach or the spread upon the floor of the fathoms deep.

"How rapidly this process sometimes strikingly shown. A laden with bricks is borne on a bare shore in a storm. Bricks are rolled and tumbling of five miles or so in a year, and by that time has usually completed its course. Authorities say that on the Cape Ann a fragment of a nail keg has been worn round by its constant turn the course of but five years.

DENMARK ONCE A POWER.

When the Tiny Kingdom Conquered and Ruled Great Britain.

Among the little nations of Europe
there is one that is seldom mentioned, except when some vessel contrives to thread its dangerous way through the Skagerrack and Cattegat. Then Denmark comes into the daily news. Did you know that Great Britain was once ruled from the capital of this tiny and remote kingdom?

It has been almost 900 years since the stalwart Canute completed the conquest of England, expelling both the Celtic and the Saxon rulers of the British Isles. When he had completed his conquest and soothed the feelings of his new subjects by marrying the widow of their former king he added Norway to his crown possessions. One of his successors ruled over the whole of the Scandinavian peninsula and a large section of what is now German and Russian territory, surrounding the Baltic sea.

Today Denmark dips one hand in the icy waters of the north and the other in the blue gulf stream, for she rules not only Iceland and Greenland, but Santa Cruz, St. Thomas and St. John, known as the Danish West Indies.
From the earliest times, when Charlemagne established the buffer state, known as the Danish Mark, on his northern frontier, the Danes have been a powerful seafaring people, emerging from piracy into legitimate commerce.

When the old princely line died out a prince of Schleswig-Holstein was invited to the Danish throne, and in 1661 the clergy combined with the common people against the nobility and in behalf of the king. A constitution was not granted until the year 1866.

THE KING'S COURIERS.

England's "Silver Greyhounds" Have Hard Work and Poor Pay.

The most exciting job that can be held in the United Kingdom is that of king's messenger. He is charged with the delicate and in war time dangerous duty of carrying important state papers in cases when it would be either unwise or impossible to use the telegraph or the postal service.

During war the king's messenger has nearly as difficult a task as has the dispatch rider, who is actually at the front. He must be continually on the lookout for spies, and it is quite within the probabilities that the steamer on which he is traveling may be stopped by an enemy vessel and his valuable papers taken from him.

Owing to the fact that they wear a badge consisting of a silver greyhound surmounted by a crown, king's messengers are nicknamed "silver greyhounds," and indeed they often have to imitate that breed of dog in swiftness and sureness of scent. To qualify for a messengership many things are needed. The candidate must be a man of first rate education, of excellent family and a good linguist.

Considering the qualifications required, the salaries of the "silver greyhounds" are by no means large. The foreign service messengers receive remuneration ranging from $1,250 to $2, 000 a year while those employed on

A Callous Letter Carrier.

A woman from up state, who recently returned from a visit to friends in Brooklyn, remarked:

"I'm glad to get back home among my own kin and friends, where people ain't too busy or too unfeeling or too stuck up to take some interest in one another.

"Now, there's them postoffice folks down in Brooklyn! I found 'em actually hard hearted. Would you believe it, the man that brings round the letters to Mary's he's so queer and standofish that when he handed me my husband's postal card telling me how mother had fell and broke her arm, he never so much as opened his lips to give me one word of sympathy! No, sir, not even enough to say, 'Too bad!' —Exchange.

Taking No Chances.

"I have called," said the complacent visitor to the office of the merchant prince, "to obtain a statement of your assets and liabilities."

"Which of the mercantile agencies do you represent?"

"Neither. I am considering making an application for your daughter's hand, and it has always been my rule to be sure I'm right before I go ahead."

INSECT MARVELS.

These Tireless Creatures Are Built For the Strenuous Life.

Many interesting facts, the result of long study, are given by Mr. Harold Bastin, an eminent entomologist, in his book, "Insects, Their Life Histories and Habits."

"Contrary to popular belief, spiders are not insects. Insects have six legs, neither more nor less, and another peculiarity of the insect is that it has wings—sometimes two, more often four. Spiders have eight legs and no wings; therefore spiders are not insects.

"Insects have no backbones and no skeletons, but skins with a hard, durable surface called chitin, which makes up a light shell of armor that forms the outside of the body, to the inside of which the muscles are attached. Insects do not breathe through their mouths, but through holes in the bodies called spiracles. Insects have neither veins nor arteries; the blood is pumped directly from the chambered heart into the body cavity, where it bathes and nourishes the organs. Insects have wonderful and enviable digestive organs and feed upon and digest almost any substance from which nourishment may be extracted.

"Because of the way they are built, insects are particularly fitted for the strenuous life, and a tired insect is a thing unknown. They are always busy traveling, buzzing, biting or seeking some work to do."

WEATHER SCIENCE

It Is Good as Far as It Goes, but It Doesn't Go Far Enough.

SECRETS HIDDEN IN THE SUN.

Changes in Intensity and Quality of Solar Rays Cause Effects That Bother Meteorologists—Why Forecasts of Experts Often Go Astray.

The most imperfect science is meteorology. The margin of error in its calculations is sometimes enormous—sufficient to completely reverse a prediction.

The weather bureau is a useful institution, based upon an incomplete system of correlated facts of observation, which are scientific as far as they go. But there are elements concerned in the production of weather about which the methods of meteorology give no information.

There are birds, insects and four footed animals which have an incomparably greater foreknowledge of weather changes than the entire scientific corps of the agricultural department possesses.

When the predictors of the weather bureau give warning of an approaching storm they act on very much the same principle as that on which a railroad time table is based. A train having been announced by telegraph as started on a given line will arrive in regular succession at certain points along that line, and a station agent at any given point can, if no accident intervenes, foretell the moment of the train's arrival at his station.

Storm centers, or cyclones, moving across the country are in some ways comparable to trains following a time schedule. But unfortunately they do not run on rails, they are not driven by an invariable force, they are subject to interruptions and obstacles of many kinds, and instead of always keeping the track and following the course they frequently wander vaguely about or take an unexpected turn or else fade away like exhausted whirls in water.

In fact, the weather bureau predictors are in the same quandary in which train dispatchers would find themselves if railroad tracks were shifting lines, continually drifting this way and that, getting crossed and entangled or sinking into suddenly formed quagmires and thus disappearing for good.

The one only great fact on which it bases its whole system of prediction is the general tendency of cyclonic disturbances in this country to travel eastward with a northerly trend, while storms originating around the gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea usually come up the coast.

But the official weather prognosticators are as much in the dark as the ordinary citizen concerning what is going to happen in the atmosphere next week, and they really know nothing about any storm until after it has begun its career, and then all that they know is the course that it will take—in case it doesn't happen to change its mind.

A slight variation in the intensity, or quality, of the radiation received from the sun might account for sudden changes or abnormal weather, and recent investigations show that such variations occur, but what is needed is more accurate knowledge about them and their effects. Heat and light are only two of an infinite number of forms of vibration sent to us from the sun. Everybody knows that when the weather records show that two days are precisely alike in temperature, in humidity, etc., human nerves prove that they are vastly unlike in some unnamed peculiarity which affects the springs of life.

The spider busily and confidently spinning her webs in preparation for a spell of fine weather which some unerring mechanism of foreknowledge within her enables her to detect is a surer guide than a barometer. She responds to vibrations as yet only guessed at by science, and so perhaps do the supersensitive nerves of many human creatures.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

Glass Cups.

The first glass cups were made at Alexandria. Some were colored like Bohemian glass and decorated with glass pastes, imitating precious stones and cameos. Some were opaline, others clear as crystal and still others formed of opaque layers welded together like the famous Portland vase, in which the white upper layer had been cut away like a cameo, leaving a blue ground around the figures.

COOKING IN A HOLE.

A Forest Ranger's Method of Preparing Baked Chicken.

One summer day, while laboriously picking a sage hen, a friendly forest ranger approached, smiling, and offered to show me an easier way.

He lifted a bird as yet untouched by my hands and deftly cleaned but did not pick it. Then he sifted some dirt from the ground into a big mixing pan half filled with water. With these ingredients he mixed a paste of soft mud. Now he cut a slab of bacon, which he placed inside the hen, with a good sprinkling of pepper and salt, at last stuffing feathers into the opening to keep the meat clean. This done, he covered the chicken with the mud paste.

Now he dug a hole deep enough to put the bird in. In the hole he built a fire and waited until there was a thick coating of coals on the sides and bottom. Next he carefully placed the mud coated chicken on top. All this he covered with shovels of dirt until the hole was airtight. Now he turned to me and said, "It will be cooked in one hour from now."

With that he went his way.

At the end of the hour he came again and, throwing back the soil, drew forth the chicken, quickly skinned it and laid before us a delicately browned chicken with a wholesome odor about it.—Outing.

FANTASTIC GOLDFISH.

Some Curious Shapes Produced by the Experts of Japan.

Japanese fish breeders took advantage of one of nature's pranks to obtain this much decorated goldfish. Years ago a Jap found in his aquarium a fish with two tails. He was so well pleased with the novelty that he undertook to make it the basis of a new type. Thus the one accident by nature became the grandfather of a race of two tailed fish. We call them Japanese fantails.

Not satisfied with the double tail, the breeders next set about molding the bodies of their fish into round balls. Breeders first picked out the fish with the shortest bodies and bred them every year by painstaking selection. Fish with shorter and shorter bodies were produced until today the accepted type of Japanese fantail has a body as round as a ball.

Not all fantails are alike. One with the ends of the tail cut off flat is called the square tail. Another with a slight inward curve to the edges of the tail is called veil tail. A third, with a deep cut out tail, is named the ribbon tail.

All these varieties have long tails and fins. You will recognize them instantly when you see them in an aquarium floating about like bits of lace in the water.

A Delayed Execution.

An eighteenth century execution on Kennington common was stopped for a time owing to a strange cause. On Aug. 19, 1763, two days before the date of the execution, a heavy fog came over London, accompanied by thunder and lightning and torrents of rain. These conditions lasted for nearly forty-eight hours, and many people believed that the last day had arrived.

One of the most remarkable operations on record performed at the Grand Hotel the massive building usually the annual saloon but now into a vast hospital. soldiers lie side by side together like Siamese twins. A large portion of the leg is being slowly taken off the leg of the other one. Surgeons are gathered about the slow development, waging as marvellous both a surgical standpoint as well sentimental, in which one is calmly giving day by day body to a fellow soldier.

The two men lie on a large operating table in the halls of the hospital. The opposite directions, the hand near the feet of the other figures on playing cards among the most serious of the younger class of 26 and the other 23 years younger, Rousselot, was the leg at the battle of the early days of the taken prisoner to Germany. The surgeons say he did intelligent attention. Before it was necessary to second operation to lengthen 14 centimetres (about 5 1/2 inches). But after the operation was ended, there was still a lacuna between the two broken femur.

The other soldier, Tilleyman, was seriously injured in the desperate battle at Fort Douamont. In a fit his leg was amputated at the knee. Later it was second operation was order to shorten the leg 15 centimetres.

It was at this point that the surgeon concluded that the leg needed the shortened leg up this portion to the needed the longer leg. Mackay, the assistant, agreed promptly, and presently found himself in command of the business. But a few months later the master was dumbfounded to meet his late assistant attired in khaki, "somewhere in France." "H'm, mon," he said angrily, "did I no' tell ye tae stay at home in charge o' ma shop?" Heated Gloves for Aviators.

A British firm has recently introduced electrically-heated gloves for aviators. Cold hands and feet are among the prime discomforts experienced by airmen flying at great altitudes, and it is obvious that numb hands in particular may lead to disaster. Ordinary gloves, irrespective of their thickness, are of little use. The electrically-heated gloves, on the other hand, maintain the hands at a comfortable temperature. As in the instance of the electrically-heated gloves for automobile drivers, electrical connection is made between small brass discs on the gloves and metal plates on the steering wheel of aircraft.

Didn't Mind Hun Clock Lying.

In a baker's shop near Oldham they have a grandfathers' clock in one corner and a small clock on the mantelshelf, and the grandfather's clock has not been altered according to the Daylight Saving Bill.

"How is it?" asked a customer, "you've altered the small clock and not the grandfather's clock?"

"Well," replied the old shopkeeper, "the grandfather's clock's been telling the truth for over forty years, and I can't find it in my heart to make a liar of it now. But the small clock was made in Germany, so it be all right, as right as can be for that!"

These conditions lasted for nearly forty-eight hours, and many people believed that the last day had arrived. When the time fixed for the execution arrived the assembled crowd cried shame on the sheriff for hanging a man when the world was coming to an end. As he persisted in his preparations, they burst through the barriers and stopped the proceedings, shouting that the culprit might as well wait a few minutes, when the grand summons would come to all. The sheriff had to obtain the assistance of a force of soldiers before the execution could be carried out.

A Shabby Coat Collar.

Very often the collar of a coat begins to look shabby when the coat is in good order, and it is wonderful what a difference a thorough cleaning will make. First take a piece of clean cloth and dip it in spirits of turpentine and rub the collar thoroughly with it. Leave it for ten minutes, then rub it again with the turpentine and scrape it carefully to remove any loose dirt. Next sponge the collar with a little alcohol and keep wiping it until it is dry. Hang it up in an airy place for an hour or two and it will look as good as new.

Serious Oversight.

"Yes," remarked Farmer Corntossel, "Josh knows a heap. He can tell me all the scientific names of what I'm tryin' to raise an' what injures the crops. But there's one thing he never investigated. If he had studied a little deeper Josh wouldn't have got all mussed up while out walkin' in his Sunday clothes."

"What did he omit?"

"He never investigated the psychological effect of a red necktie on a bull."

Value of the Kangaroo's Tail.

So important is the kangaroo's tail in his rapid progress that experienced hunters with guns are accustomed to fire at the point where this appendage joins the body, when, the tail being disabled for its office of balancing, the animal is as effectually stopped as if hamstrung. Hit elsewhere, except with a rifle bullet at point blank range, the kangaroo is pretty likely to get off. One peculiarity of the kangaroo is that, after being started up, he very rarely swerves from his course, through which peculiarity he is easily "potted" by hunters, who conceal themselves while a man on horseback drives the herd toward them.

Warming Gold Dishes.

Castle Kilkenny is one of the oldest inhabited dwellings in the world, some of the rooms being 800 years old. Among its ancient treasures is a service of gold plate. Besides the ordinary plate service, Castle Kilkenny has the whole series of gold cups used at coronation banquets down to the time of George IV. The gold of the service plates is almost without alloy, consequently very soft and easily marred. Hence the plates are warmed and presumably also washed after use by being dipped into hot water held by a pair of tongs whose tips have been muffled in chamois leather. —London Globe.

A TALE of RED ROSES

By

GEORGE
RANDOLPH
CHESTER

"He isn't just instantaneous—he's immediate," laughed Molly. "It was a fool thing to do, though. Feeder has exposed him and saved us the trouble, and Sledge probably will go to the penitentiary, as I told him he would."

"You have innocent ideas," kindly observed her father. "Bert probably encourages you in them, but it is my duty to warn and protect you. Here is exactly what will happen: Feeder will go to the penitentiary for the crime of not having kept his mouth shut. Sledge will be indicted by the grand jury, but the case will never come to trial. He has appointed half the judges on the bench, and the other half are afraid of him. His lawyers will fight from court to court on one technicality after another until election is over, and then the public will forget all about it. You can't fight a man like that."

"I can be the one human being in the world he can't order around," she smilingly insisted. "What do you want me to do—marry him?"

"Yes," was the unexpected reply.

"Great goodness," laughed Molly, "are you bluffed too?"

"Worse!" he said, rising and walking up and down in the few short paces the length of the room allowed him. He had a crumpled newspaper in his hand, and now he threw it on the table. "Do you want to be turned homeless into the street?"

"In the shivering snow with a little red shawl over my head?" she giggled. "No, father; gray heaven, no!"

"It isn't a joke," he insisted, stopping before her, and now the mask of constraint dropped from his face. "Molly, you know that he threatened to break me. Well, he has done it."

"Nonsense!" she replied, unable to conceive of that condition in its actuality since there was no halt in their luxury. "It is impossible."

"It is a fact," he stated as calmly as he could. "At the various banks which Sledge controls I had obligations, which I thought were only nominally considered to be call loans, aggregating a hundred thousand dollars. These were protected by my traction stock. Last week the bank called them. I recently received $87,500 in cash on a certain deal, and I had considerable trouble to raise the additional $12,500. I had to deposit $25,000 worth of my stock to secure it, and yesterday I had to put up twenty-five thousand more."

"But why?" asked Molly, sitting down and considering the matter over.

way your brilliant business is conducted? I won't be a part of a bargain. You urge me not to marry Bert because you decide I don't love him, and you urge me to marry a man who can bring your stock to par. Father, you're scared. Can't you think of any way out of your fluctuation but having me marry Sledge?"

"He loves you," he told her with conviction. "Sledge never gives up."

"That's why he wins," she asserted. "He tries everything. Why don't you? Why don't you announce that the new company is illegal and that it will be fought in the courts? Have the newspaper say it can't build its lines; then the price of your stock will go up again. Why don't you trade some of your stock for stock in the new company? Why don't you threaten to stop all your cars until the mayor or somebody makes the new company build its lines away from your street? The new company couldn't have cars running for six months, and there'd be a riot unless the authorities did what you wanted them to do. Why don't you go down and shoot Sledge or hire it done? He would! In fact, he'd have done it by this time, I know. Why don't you go to the men who are getting up this company and see what you can find out? Then you can begin some planning. I wish I were a man!"

Frank Marley sat staring at her. She was standing, tall, straight and with flushed cheeks, her eyes shining. He passed his hand over his brow.

"No wonder Sledge wants to marry you!" he involuntarily complimented her. "You'd make a great team!"

She laughed and relented.

"I don't intend to be mean, but you drive me to it," she said and kissed him and patted him on the head. "Go down to these people and see what you can find out," she counseled.

"I think I will," he concluded, with a drowning man's desperation. "Molly, you're a gritty one."

Mr. Bozzam, in the privacy of his own apartments, reflectively broke the ashes from his cigar into his empty highball glass.

"Is the big chief punctuated, or is he just enjoying himself?" he speculated.

"It's my opinion that he's picked up horseshoe nails with all four times," declared fat little Timbers, eying the hated collar which he never put on until just before he went out. "The

CHAPTER VII.

Marley and Bozzam Plan to Outwit Sledge.

PRESIDENT MARLEY smiled as he met Bozzam. The two gentlemen agreed the weather was fine.

"I'm afraid you're too late, Marley," laughed Bozzam. "Our subscription list is ready to close."

"I have all the street railway stock I care for," laughed Marley in return. "I only came up to take your measure for the battle."

"It ought not to be so fierce," replied Bozzam, in the usually friendly manner of men who are about to cut each other's commercial throats. "There should be room for two good car systems in this town."

"Not on the same streets," objected Marley. "Don't you think it rather foolish to parallel our lines, Mr. Bozzam? The route, as published, looks like malice to me."

"I have no voice in that matter," declared Mr. Bozzam, eying his caller narrowly. "You should see our majority stockholder about that."

"I see," mused Mr. Marley. "Who is your principal stockholder?"

"I believe the gentleman's name is Sledge—Benjamin F. Sledge," Bozzam informed him, with a smile. "Perhaps you've heard of him."

"Yes, I have," admitted Marley, whose smile was more or less strained.

"Friend of yours, I believe," suggested Bozzam, still smiling, and still studying Mr. Marley's countenance interestedly.

"Not offensively so," denied Marley.

"Indeed!" exclaimed Bozzam, with a splendid assumption of perplexity. "You know, I find it very difficult to unravel the personal, political and commercial relationships of all you fellows. Frankly, I have believed until now that you were in on the game."

"Game?" repeated Marley.

"I mean that I thought you were to benefit by the formation of this new company," exclaimed Bozzam with an apparent trace of confusion.

"Benefit!" exploded Marley. "Why, it has all but broke me. Do you think it's any benefit to a man to have his only valuable holdings reduced from par to thirty-five?"

"By George, I'm shocked!" sympathized Bozzam. "Why, I thought you and Sledge were in perfect understanding."

"I don't know where you acquired that absurd impression, but it is entirely wrong," asserted Mr. Marley, with much vehemence. "Mr. Sledge would do everything in his power to hurt me."

"And I presume that you would do him a like favor if you had the opportunity," grinned Bozzam.

"I would not say that," hastily returned Marley, feeling that he had enough trouble on his hands.

"You're thinking it, though," laughed Bozzam.

Mr. Marley flushed slightly, but kept discreetly silent.

He paused to let all the that logical little plan sink into Marley's inner being.

"Great Scott!" murmured Marley and wiped his brow. "Blasted we stop him?"

"Get control of the company special meeting. When you sell you our franchises start refuse to pay more than the franchises. You can build and make a fine grand out of it when you know won't. We'll accept fifty and then you juggle it to me and Timbers and me a hundred thousand dollars on the side. You've dragged down what we owe for our work, Sledge gets and your stock bounces. Why, man, you'll not only own you were before, but you'll close to a hundred thousand the stunt."

"Order some whisky," Marley gested to his host.

Sledge, in the luxurious which he occupied for an day as president of the Firm, gazed stonily at Bendix as the button on his desk.

"Chamberlain's house," he ed. "Huh."

"Of course Marley gave n. Thirty, sixty and ninety day months; four payments, each."

stock to secure it, and yesterday I had to put up twenty-five thousand more."

"But why?" asked Molly, sitting down and considering the matter seriously for the first time.

"Because in one day merely by announcing that he was financially backing a competing company Sledge lowered the value of my stock from a hundred dollars a share to thirty-five. That same announcement broke the West End bank, has crippled two others and made paupers of a hundred or more small stockholders."

"How horrible!" she exclaimed. "The poor people!" Then the wonder of such power came to her. "With just a word," she mused. "But, father, I don't see yet how he could do it. You say that your stock was worth a hundred dollars a share yesterday morning and only thirty-five now?"

He nodded his head in confirmation. "Each share of stock represents a certain part ownership of the street railway company, doesn't it?"

Again he nodded.

"Well, the road is still there," she argued. "You still own as much of it as you did before. Why, father, Sledge has just scared everybody. Your stock will be worth what it was, or nearly so, after this panic is over. Even competition can't keep you from hauling people and making money at it."

"It can keep us from hauling enough to make anything like our previous profits, and earning capacity is what gives stock its value. That is not the big trouble now, however. I have a $70,000 mortgage on this place, which is all it would bring at a forced sale, although it is worth double the money. It expires on the 1st of the month, and Sledge knows it. It is held at one of his banks, and it will not be extended."

"You'll have to pay it," she surmised.

"What with?" he demanded. "At the present prices, at which, by the way, nobody cares to buy, it would take every share of my stock to pay off that mortgage. I would be absolutely penniless."

"How did you come to owe so much?" she puzzled. "I thought we were wealthy."

"That's the way business is carried on," he explained.

"Then anybody can be broke," she decided, with a trace of awe. "Why don't some of you good business men get after Sledge?"

He looked at her pityingly.

"It can't be done," he confessed. "Molly"—

"I know what you're going to say," she interrupted him. "I won't do it. I'm going to marry Bert if it breaks everybody!"

"That would be a very commendable spirit if you loved him," he quietly remarked. "I don't think you do, however. Nor do I, by any means, believe Bert capable of a love worth the sacrifice of everything. The Maryland Gliders do not constitute a universe in themselves, nor is much happiness to be found in a marriage which is a social triumph. I'm afraid, Molly, that you're stubborn and will not let yourself criticize your own mind."

"Of course I'm stubborn!" she admitted, as if that were a virtue. "The time is set, and it will stay set. Do all you men have to give up because I won't marry somebody? Is that the declared fat little Timbers, eying the hated collar which he never put on until just before he went out. "The big chief has wriggled his way through the broken glass for so many years that he has thought himself immune. But his pneumatics are flat this time. They've got him."

"I don't know," considered Bozzam. "They have to bring him to trial yet, and for a man who controls the sacred judiciary it's a long way between an indictment and a hair cut."

"They'll hang him," avowed Timbers. "The people of this town have been afraid of him so long that the first time they catch him out without his big stick every man in the county will be fighting to get on the jury which pronounces him guilty."

Mr. Moodson folded the other thumb on top.

"Possibly you're right," assented Bozzam, noting the capitalist's sign of extreme agitation. "When we first started in on this game I was afraid to think with my head under the covers, for fear he'd find it out and decorate me with a ball and chain, but now that they've got him on the run I think it's the psychological moment to hand him the double cross."

"Encore!" applauded Timbers. "He has it coming to him for reducing us to the pay of day laborers. It gives me the heaves to think of pulling off a quarter of a million burglary and only walking away with fifty thousand of the velvet."

"It wasn't safe to let ourselves wish we ought to have any more," explained Bozzam. "I know how we could slip our friend Sledge the twin X's, but the trouble is nobody owns the majority of the stock in the company, which is to be milked."

"Let me do some guessing for you," offered Timbers. "If you sift it down to the bottom I think you'll find our aforesaid Sledge as the principal owner."

"You're a good barroom kidder, but you have a skull of solid bone," gently chided Bozzam. "Sledge slid from under every share of his stock while he could extract a hundred for it. He may own a majority of it by and by, but he'll buy it in for thirty-five or less and boost it to a hundred after the old company has bought our franchises with the pretty quarter of a million it got for that new stock. Then he'll probably sell out and stampede it again, so he can buy it up for thirty-five."

"Solid bone was right," acknowledged Timbers. "I suppose nobody owns that stock just now."

"Not enough of it to do any good," decided Bozzam.

"Maybe the wreck has the biggest nest egg," suggested Timbers.

"The wreck? Whom do you mean?"

The telephone bell rang. Timbers answered it, covered the transmitter with his hand and turned to Bozzam with a grin.

"Marley," he answered.

"Marley?" repeated Bozzam. "Tell him to come up. Timbers, duck," he directed as soon as the invitation had been extended. "Moodson, I think I'll have to be mysterious with President Fluff."

Mr. Moodson arose amid vast silence, looked at his watch and went away to keep a deferred appointment with mel-ed Bozzam.

Mr. Marley flushed slightly, but kept discreetly silent.

"I thought so," Bozzam chuckled. "Mr. Marley, how much of the stock of the reorganized company do you own?"

"Two thousand six hundred and twenty-five shares."

"A little over a fourth," commented Bozzam and drew a sheet of writing paper toward him, on which he figured for a moment. "To gain control you would need 2,376 shares additional," he announced. "How many of the stockholders would vote with you in an emergency?"

"Not very many," confessed Marley. "Naturally a share of our trouble is blamed to me, and I am not very popular at present."

"Certainly not," agreed Bozzam. "Fussing with pikers isn't safe, anyhow. You'd better buy the stock."

"Buy it!" protested Marley. "Great Scott, man, what do I want with more of it?"

"Would you like to win out on this little game of Sledge's?"

"Show me how," demanded Marley.

"How active are you willing to be?" inquired Bozzam. "Are you willing to jump through a hoop?"

"I'll do anything that is lawful."

"Then you'll go the limit," smiled Bozzam. "Your first step will be to buy those two thousand odd shares at thirty-five. Let's see." He figured it out. "They will cost you a little over $83,000."

"I haven't the money," confessed Marley. "Sledge has cleaned me out of both cash and credit."

"Borrow it on your stock."

"I can't borrow over twenty on it. I couldn't raise enough on my total unencumbered stock."

Bozzam walked to the window and looked down into the street for some little time during which Marley watched him in silent wonder, struggling against his rising hope.

"I think I can raise a loan for you at twenty," Bozzam reported as the result of his deliberation. "If that is not enough I might have it arranged to buy the balance needed and vote it with you."

"But what is the plan?" demanded Marley. "I don't see what good control of a ruined company is going to do me nor why I should break myself buying worthless stock."

"Because Sledge isn't liberal enough with me," returned Bozzam. "Why, Marley, don't you see that this company of ours is a fake?"

"You don't mean it!" gasped Marley. "Did Sledge have you start this company in order to break me?"

"Oh, hush!" scorned Bozzam. "He did it to sell the old company our franchises, for the nice little quarter of a million dollars the public has just put up for stock in your reorganized company. Our stock is phony, strictly. The public has been allowed to buy fifty thousand of it, we get two hundred thousand and Sledge seven hundred and fifty. The public is the only person who has put up any money, and he gets his back. The only business we'll do is to sell our franchises and disband, with a 25 per cent dividend. The public gets twelve and a half thousand, we get fifty, and Sledge gets the balance of your quarter of a million."

"He's using cash, even in payment of his grocery bills," said Bendix. "Young Keene that he saw into Marley's po

"They'd make a noise," objected Sledge, glaring down at the cuspidor, which, in this room, took the place of the hand hole in the gate as a source of inspiration.

"How about Bozzam?"

"I've tried my best to trace something back to his crowd, but I can't find a connection any place."

Sledge was silent for a moment.

"Bozzam's in it," he said decisively. "I don't like to think so," defended Bendix. "He seems to work clean."

"You found him," explained Sledge. "He's in it. He's a crook."

Even Bendix grinned.

"I don't deny that, but he's too wise to start anything with you. That's what I bank on."

"He thinks I'm on the pan," judged Sledge. "He's a stranger."

Davis came in.

"We have telephoned all the banks," he reported. "None of them has made any recent loans to Mr. Marley nor have any checks been drawn in his favor."

"Hunh!" grunted Sledge. He stolidly walked out of the office, followed by Bendix, and climbed into his waiting runabout, over which the crossing policeman stood guard. "Don't buy any more stock," he directed Bendix and drove off. "Sell it."

He strode into the offices of the traction company and stopped at Hunt's desk.

"Marley drawn any money here?" he wanted to know.

"His salary," replied Hunt, fawning servilely on the big man who stood at his side.

"Is he selling any stock?"

"Not that I know of, sir?"

"Making any flash?"

"Not particularly. He has been whistling."

"Making any threats?"

"Not that I heard."

"Hunh!" and Sledge turned from the desk. "Anybody in with him?"

"I think his daughter, sir," smirked Hunt, "and Mr. Glider, unless they have gone out the other way."

Sledge looked down at his lapel. The red rose was an excellent specimen except that it had one straggling petal in which was a worm hole. He jerked off that petal and walked unannounced into Marley's office, pausing just inside the door, struck dumb by tableau being enacted at the opposite entrance. Bert Glider, in the act of departing, was kissing Molly goodby, and Marley, at his desk, was looking on unconcernedly. Bert grinned impudently at Sledge and departed. Molly grinned tantalizingly at him and sat in the big leather chair opposite her father. Marley grinned cheerfully and offered him a cigar.

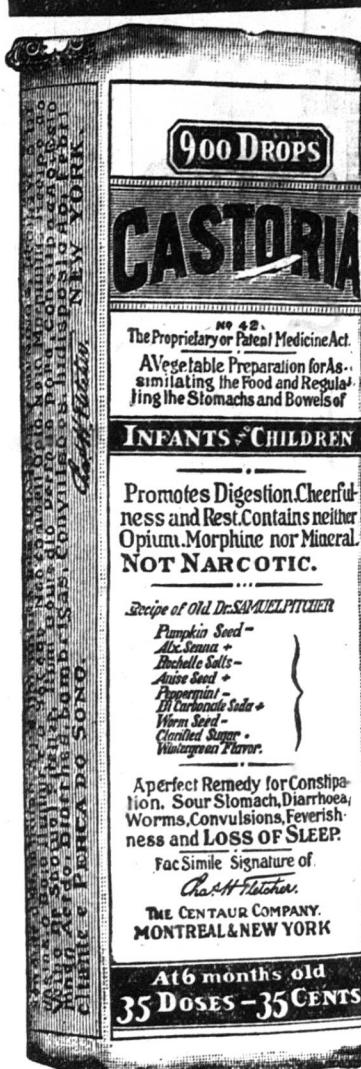

"Fine weather," he observed.

"Who give out the dope about extending the Ridgewood avenue line?" Sledge gruffly wanted to know.

"I did," returned Marley calmly. "I thought it might help the price of my stock. It's been going down of late."

"Who gave you the word?"

FOUND A GRAND MACHINE.

And There Are Some Men Who Have Not Yet Discovered Its Usefulness.

"I say, old chap, why have you deserted the club?"

"To tell you the truth, dear boy, I've been so blooming busy that with the exception of an occasional tramp or two for my health I've hardly left the house."

"Oh, I say, anything new?"

"Tremendously new to me, old chap. Several weeks ago I very unexpectedly ran across it—an old machine I've owned a good many years and never paid much attention to. Upon examination the thing is so monstrously wonderful, you know, that it has simply held me in open mouthed consternation. I can't actually take it in, and, bless me, I can't understand why I've so long ignored its possibilities—just accepted it, you know, this wonderful inheritance of my ancestors, as something very natural and quite ordinary."

"Hope you've struck a money maker, old man."

"I believe I have, you know, and that's one of the remarkable parts about my discovery. Can you conceive.

"Who gave you the word?"

"I didn't need it," Marley reminded him. "I'm still president of the road, you know."

"I've called it off," Sledge informed him. "You got no franchise."

"I beg your pardon," Marley smilingly interrupted. "The original franchise granted a line to the end of Grace street. When it was cut through to connect with Ridgewood avenue the authorization of the cut and all the condemnation proceedings were for an extension of Grace street."

"May I tell Mr. Sledge what we intend to do out there?" Molly pleasantly inquired.

"I don't mind," granted Mr. Marley, beaming upon his child.

"We plan to carry out the original idea of building an amusement park on the Porson property and to drop the Lincoln road project if the stockholders don't object at their meeting tomorrow," she happily told him. "Mr. Glider thinks it a much better location. Shall you be at the meeting, Mr. Sledge?"

In reply he chuckled at her.

"You're a corker!" he complimented her.

"You don't own much stock any more, do you?" she went on, delighted with her catechism.

"Enough to stick around," he reminded her. "Marley, are you figuring to put something over at this meeting?"

"Are you?" returned Marley blandly.

"Humph!" Sledge half laughed. "Molly, my Bob is matched against the champion forty pound bull of Chicago tomorrow night. I can arrange for you to see the scrap without these roughnecks getting a peek at you."

"Thank you," she replied. "I'm sure I can't come, however. I've never seen a real dog fight, and I don't want to see one. But I hope Bob wins."

"He'll win," declared Sledge confidently. "He's never been licked yet."

"Everybody gets it some time, don't they?" Molly dimpled up at him.

"Uh-humph!" he gruffly assented.

Full of thought, he went over to see Bozzam, who now had an office in the newest palace of commerce.

"Ready for the meeting tomorrow?" he inquired.

"Quite," replied Bozzam, who, when with Sledge, was sparing of words. "Is the slate fixed?"

"Sure! Bozzam, I got your record."

"Yes?" returned Bozzam carelessly.

"You served two bits before you got educated, a one year and a two stretch."

"Yes," agreed Bozzam, still carelessly.

"Well, if you try to pull anything here it'll be ten."

Mr. Bozzam laid down the pencil with which he had been tapping lightly on his desk and leaned slightly forward.

"Look here, you big slob," he gently observed. "you can't bully me, and you can't bluff me. When you get the goods on me is the time for you to get

Use of Pious Language.

The almost total abstinence from using "pious" language in ordinary business and social intercourse in America may be considered commendable in some ways, but I consider it a surrender of the soul to the body, a subordination of the spirit of the things which are eternal to the spirit of the things which are temporal. In my judgment the superior culture of the west, instead of limiting the vocabulary of religion to the one hour of formal worship on Sunday and scrupulously shunning it during the remainder of the week, should make its use on a much higher plane than the orient has yet discovered, coextensive with all the activities of life.—Abraham Mitrie Rihbany in Atlantic Monthly.

Conquered the Orchestra.

In his early days Herr Arthur Nikisch, the famous conductor, was appointed to conduct a performance of "Tannhaeuser" at the Leipzig opera. He was but a young chorus master at the time, and the orchestra absolutely refused to play under so youthful a conductor. They were only induced to do so when a director said that if they were of the same mind after the overture had been played they could then and there hand in their resignations. The overture was a veritable triumph for Nikisch, and with profuse apologies the orchestra offered him their congratulations.—London Tit-Bits.

"I believe I have, you know, and that's one of the remarkable parts about my discovery. Can you conceive, old chap, of my having never seen its possibilities? It's merely a piece of machinery, mind you, and let me tell you some of the things it can do. With a turn from me I can make it see or hear or speak or walk or dance or write or telephone. Why, I can and with no effort at all make it breathe."

"Oh, I say, what is the blooming thing, old chap?"

"It's my blooming self, old top, and I'm going to put it to work and make a fortune."

Making Things Hum In Rome.

The Romans had three recognized methods of applauding—the busbus, the imbrices and the testae. The word busbus did not carry any allusion to explosives. On the contrary, this form of applause was the most decorous, inasmuch as it consisted merely of a humming or buzzing noise. Thus in a way the Romans were the first "to make things hum" in a public assembly. The busbus was not the chief feature the Romans had to offer in the way of applause. The imbrices meant a demonstration made with the hollow of the hands. The testae meant the striking together of the flat portions of the hands. From this we may conclude that the Romans clapped, but there is no certainty on this point.

The Talmud.

The Talmud is the compendium of ancient Jewish oral or unwritten law, as distinguished from the Pentateuch, or written law. Its origin is coeval with the return of the Jewish people from the Babylonian captivity, 536 B. C. Its compilation in Hebrew was begun by the scribes, and by their successors the work was carried on till 220 B. C. The Talmud is a combination of prose and poetry and contains two elements, legal and legendary. Its morality resembles that of the New Testament, and its philosophy reminds us very forcibly of that of the great Plato.

Paint Looks Alike When It's New

You can't tell much about the quality of paint by looking at it when it is freshly applied. Colors are easy to produce, and the glisten of fresh oil gives even poor paint a temporary beauty.

But look at it a Few Years Later!

The cheap paint, that started out so bravely, has faded, cracked, and peeled. It is unsightly, and—more important still—has exposed the wood below to the destructive effect of sun, rain, wind and snow. The other, is still a good-looking, weather-tight coating, that will give years more of reliable service.

B-H "ENGLISH" PAINT

There is no mystery about the reason. It lies in the fact that B-H "English" Paint is perfectly proportioned to meet Canadian weather conditions. It contains 70% of Brandram's B.B. Genuine White Lead, and 30% of Pure White Zinc, ground to such marvellous fineness that it penetrates deep into the fibre of the wood.

Being the best, it's cheapest in the end.

A Fruit Picking Belt.

A simple device that is of great help to pickers has been used in A. B. Veede's orchard in Georgia. It is especially helpful when picking from low trees, as it allows the picker the use of both hands.

It consists of a leather strap with hooks at both ends, as shown in the cut, with strap running through loops, and with holes at intervals so as to Control Measures Recommended For Different Species.

True, wireworms are reckoned by specialists in the United States department of agriculture as among the five should be plowed as soon as the wheat is harvested. This kills the worms by destroying their food supply and preventing proper hibernation. Where circumstances permit, interposing between sod and corn such crops as field peas and buckwheat, which are not severely attacked by wireworms, will materially reduce the number of worms in the soil when corn is planted.

Corn wireworms damage cereal and forage crops in the middle Atlantic states, the New England states and the Mississippi valley. They are reddish brown in color, about one and one-fourth inches long, cylindrical in shape and have three slight lobes or projections on the tail. These insects spend a considerably longer time in the soil than the wheat wireworm. In some cases they have been known to live in the ground as long as six years. On the other hand, they are almost exclusively confined to poorly drained and heavy soils. For this reason heavy liming and thorough tile draining will undoubtedly prove beneficial in their control. The thorough cultivation of waste land, especially along drainage ditches and creeks during midsummer, and the deep cultivation of crops and fallow land are also recommended.

Meadow wireworms attack corn, potatoes, onions, cabbage, radishes, turnips, horseradish, spinach, sugar beets and alfalfa. In the northwest they are most destructive on irrigated lands and in the east on poorly drained areas. They look very much like the dry land wireworm, but can be easily distinguished from other varieties by their forked tails. They do not usually attack beans or peas, and the planting of these crops before seeding to corn would therefore assist in controlling the pest. The thorough tile draining of infested fields in eastern areas and the heavy liming of the land at the rate of about two tons to the acre, together with deep cultivation during July and August are other measures that specialists recommend for their control.

The dry land wireworm and the infested wireworm of the west are very similar in appearance and seem to be confined to the dry farming regions of the northwest and to the wheat regions of the northern middle west.

In the dry land regions this wireworm feeds only during spring. The hot, dry months it passes at a depth of from four to eight inches below the surface. This habit makes it possible to control the pest by breaking up the soil in the hot months. The resting wireworms that are not actually crushed by the cultivation will soon succumb to drying when their cells are broken open. In infested regions in the northwest, therefore, farmers are recommended to disk or drag harrow the summer fallow as early as possible in the spring in order to produce a dust mulch. The disking should be continued as often as is necessary to maintain this mulch and to keep down the weeds. In July or early in August the summer fallow should be plowed and immediately afterward dragged. As soon as the crop is removed the stubble should be plowed. This method of handling land will not only kill off many of the insects, but will materially reduce the weeds. The early

By carrying a basket in this way the picker will not drop the fruit, as he frequently does if the basket is on the ground. WHAT ONTARIO FOLKS SAY.

Hamilton, Ont.—"This is to state that I have received great benefit from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Some time ago I was run down and weak, suffered loss of appetite and was miserable. Four bottles of the 'Prescription' cured me up in fine shape; it did wonders for me and I can recommend it very highly to women who are ailing."—Miss MARIE MILLER, 127 Hess St., Hamilton, Ont.

Brantford, Ont.—"Some few years ago I got in a very much run-down condition. Was very weak; could not do anything; had no strength at all. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; I only took five bottles and it put me in splendid condition. I felt better than I had for years. Other members of my family have used this medicine and found it equally as beneficial. I can highly recommend it to weak women."—MRS. A. GILMOUR, 71 Brighton Row, Brantford, Ont.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes women happy by making them healthy. There are no more crying spells. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well.

Like an open book, our faces tell the tale of health or disease. Hollow cheeks and sunken eyes, listless steps, sleepless nights—tell of wasting debilitating disease some place in the body. It may be one place or another, the cause is generally traceable to a common source.

specialists in the United States department of agriculture as among the five worst pests to corn and among the twelve worst pests to wheat and oats. They attack many other crops as well, however, notably potatoes and sugar beets, and are considered one of the two most difficult groups of insects to control. To combat them successfully it is essential that the farmer should be able to recognize the various species and to distinguish them from other insects of somewhat similar appearance. To assist him in doing so the depart-off many of the insects, but will materially reduce the weeds. The early disking merely softens the soil and allows the weed seeds to sprout. These are subsequently destroyed by the summer plowing.

In conclusion, the new bulletin of the department of agriculture points out that various so called remedies for wireworms have been found quite useless. Among these is the use of various substances upon the seed corn and wheat. Certain commercial fertilizers which have been recommended as insecticides have also proved worthless in this respect. The application of lime is not effective as an insecticide, but is of value in rendering the soil more easily drained. Late fall plowing appears to be without effect. Trapping the worms with baits of poisoned vegetables is impracticable in the case of field crops, although it may be of some value in intensive farming.

Killing Insects With Gas.

Fruit growers of California who have long contended with insect pests are now employing a new method of killing the pests, which is said to be exceedingly efficient, says the Popular Science Monthly. Under the old system of spraying the trees the best result that could be obtained under the most favorable conditions was the removal of from 80 to 85 per cent of the insects. By fumigating the fruit trees with hydrocyanic gas it is said that 100 per cent results are usually obtained.

A gas making machine has been recently placed at the disposal of the fruit growers, which mixes the component parts of the gas and liberates the fumigating gas in any desired quantities. In the employment of this machine a tent is placed over the tree which is about to be treated. By means of markings on the canvas the number of cubic feet occupied by the tree is accurately measured, and the amount of gas to be employed is thus decided.

The gas is liberated under the tent and permeates the inclosed space, thus fumigating every branch and leaf of the infected tree. The gas is held in the tent for about an hour, when all the insects are usually found to have perished.

BREAKAGE IN CANNING.

When breakage of jars occurs it is due to such causes as:

Overpacking jars. Corn, pumpkin peas, lima beans and sweet potatoes swell or expand in processing. Do not fill the jars quite full of these products.

Placing cold jars in hot water, or vice versa. As soon as the jars are filled with hot syrup or hot water place immediately in the canner.

If top cracks during sterilization the wire bail was too tight.

In steam canner, having too much water in the canner. Water should not come above the platform.

Allowing cold draft to strike the jars when they are removed from the canner.

Having wire bail too tight, thus breaking the jars or glass tops when lever is forced down.

ment of agriculture has just published farmers' bulletin 725, "Wireworms Destructive to Cereal and Forage Crops," by J. A. Hyslop.

The wheat wireworm of the northeast and middle west is pale yellow, cylindrical and shiny. When full grown it is about one inch in length and about as thick as the lead in a pencil. It can be readily recognized by the two dark spots near the base of the tail. Normally it feeds upon grass roots and produces no disturbance in the meadows. When the sod is broken, however, the insects gather in the drill rows or hills and destroy the seed or eat off the roots of the plants which sprout. In this way the crop often is absolutely destroyed.

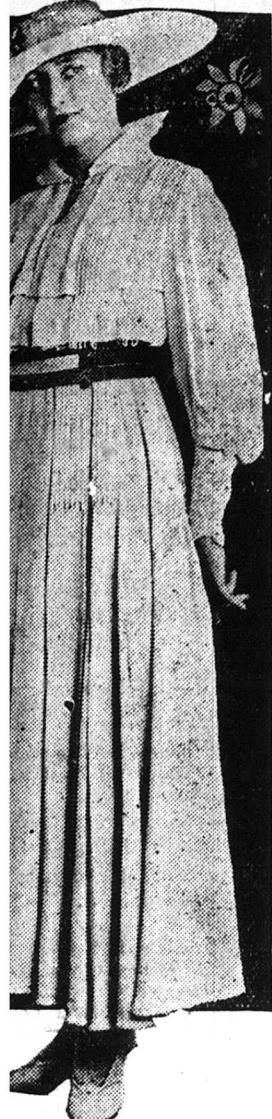

To control the wheat wireworm land intended for corn should be plowed immediately after the first cutting of hay, usually early in July. Throughout the remainder of the summer this land should be cultivated deeply. Badly infested land in corn should also be deeply cultivated even at the risk of slightly root pruning the corn. As soon as the crop is removed the field should be very thoroughly tilled before sowing to wheat. Wheat fields that are not seeded to other crops

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

CONSUMPTION.

JOHN BROWN had noticed for some time that he was not up to the mark. In the morning he felt very well, but through the day he became tired, sleepy, and a little feverish. He had had a slight tickling cough for a month or two, but did not cough up anything.

One afternoon he felt a warmth behind his breastbone, and at the same time he had a salty taste in his mouth. Following a tickling in his throat he coughed and brought up a few teaspoonfuls of bright red blood.

This alarmed his friends very much, and he turned pale, his hands were cold and perspiration broke out on his forehead. His mother sent for the doctor, who examined his nose, throat, and chest, and finally told him the blood came from his chest. He was placed in bed and told to keep quiet and that he need not have any fear for the bleeding. The physician took a sample of the material that John coughed up and found, as he suspected, that he was suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs. Consumption is the cause of spitting of blood in nine cases out of ten. Other causes are pneumonia, congestion, bronchitis, heart disease, aneurism, menstrual trouble, and scurvy. One out of every twenty-five cases of consumption starts with a slight hemorrhage. In one out of every six cases there is no other symptom. In two out of every three cases there is nothing to bring on a hemorrhage. The patient when quiet notices a salty taste, has a little tickling, coughs, and up comes the blood.

These early hemorrhages are never fatal. But the appearance of blood frightens most people, and perhaps it is a good thing to have the hemorrhage, because it is a reliable danger signal.

A patient of this kind should be kept quiet in bed for a few days. He usually needs no medicine, except in cases where he is very much frightened or shocked, when the doctor may give him some sedative. He must not get stimulants such as whiskey, aromatic spirits of ammonia, etc. If the side from which he is bleeding can be distinguished he should lie on that side.

If there is no return of hemorrhage after a few days he may get out in the open air. Horseback riding will be good exercise for him, and he may do a little outdoor work. Outdoor air and good food are the requisites for care.

Above all things, a patient who has had a slight hemorrhage—and every other consumptive—should avoid the use of the numerous advertised "Cures for Consumption." None of them are of any value in the treatment of this disease; some of them are positively harmful.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Apply while hot with a scrub brush. This will color one side. Fiber rugs and plain carpets may be freshened wonderfully in this manner. Use light blue on a blue rug, tan or orange for brown, light green for a green rug. Do not get the dye too dark or the rug will look muddy.

To remove ink from a rug or carpet immediately sop sweet milk over the spot and dry as much as possible with a dry cloth. Then apply gasoline to take out the grease that the milk would otherwise leave. To remove soot from a carpet sprinkle the spot with salt. Let the salt remain on the spot for about twenty minutes, then sweep it hard with a broom. The spot will disappear.

Many substances are used as adulterants.

Water is one of the things used in adulterating sugar.

Marble dust has been frequently used for this purpose.

Other materials, finely ground, have been added to sugar.

The most frequent addition is glucose, or corn sugar, which is much cheaper.

Glucose is less sweet than pure sugar, partly because of its lesser solubility in water.

In these days of pure food inspection there is comparatively little danger of buying adulterated sugar.

auspices of the Red Cross Society. The recital was for the benefit of the Prisoners-of-war Fund and the immense audience bore witness to the worthiness of the cause. As a pianiste, Helen VanLuven won the hearts of all her hearers. Her technic is remarkable and her interpretations of the highest order. Of the piano numbers, on the programme, perhaps the most admired were, Valse, Etude, (in D flat), Skylark, Sextette, (left hand solo), Etude and Hungarian Rhapsody which displayed wonderful technical proficiency. Elizabeth VanLuven is a lyric soprano and sang artistically, Roundelay and Love's Dream, and was given an enthusiastic reception by the audience. She is also a charming violiniste, whose pleasing manner and artistic rendering of Berceuse, Souvenir and Meditation, captivates her audience. The entire programme was given from memory. A bright future awaits these young artists, who will ever receive a warm welcome from a Napanee audience.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society has several intellectual treats in store for the people of Napanee during the coming season. The following distinguished lecturers have already been secured:—Miss Florence Withrow, B. A., who has many times travelled through the countries now at war and has a more extensive knowledge of their interesting features than any other woman in Canada. She is also an intelligent and fascinating speaker. Miss Marjorie MacMurchy is well known as a charming writer and has taken a lively interest in all matters appertaining to the welfare of the women of Canada. Venerable Archdeacon Davidson of Guelph, is widely known as a lecturer, who has made a special study of the Latin countries of Europe.

W. F. Nickle, K.C., M.P., of Kingston, will, in the near future, give us an address upon the impressions gained by him during his recent visit to the front. Mr. Nickle needs no introduction to the people of Napanee and with such a subject will prove a great attraction. Dr. A. H. Reynar, formerly Professor of Victoria University, is well known in Napanee as a scholarly gentleman and a pleasing speaker. The subject of his address will be announced later. Dr. E. F. Scott, of Queen's University, has also promised to give an address. He is well and favorably known to the public in this district. This array of noted speakers should ensure a full attendance at each meeting. No admission will be charged as the Society depends upon the voluntary subscriptions of its members to meet the running expenses. The former practice of sending post cards to the members announcing the meetings will for the present be discontinued. The public are asked therefore, to watch the announcements in the press of the town and the bulletins which will be posted in conspicuous places. As formerly, annual subscriptions may be handed to Rev. A. J. Wilson, secretary-treasurer. The meetings are open to the public and membership is not necessary in order to gain admission. All are welcome.

For that cough that hangs on, and for a tonic and builder, there is nothing equal to Rexall Wine of Cod Liver Oil (special)—the fishy taste of the oil is removed without impairing the effect of the medicine. Sold in Napanee at WALLACE'S, Napanee's Leading Drug Store.

The Lamp Exploded.

On Thursday evening Fred Thompson, on going to put out the light, but failed to do so the flame was driven down oil. Shortly after, his wife found the lamp had exploded. The room was on fire. After a few minutes the fire was extinguished though not before considerable damage had been done to carpet, and wearing apparel.

Little Girl Burned to Death in B

The two-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Clayton Card, a farmer near Verona, was burned to death on Tuesday afternoon in a barn which was destroyed by fire. The Card's children were playing in the barn and it is thought they were playing matches. Two of them when the place became engulfed in flames, but the baby girl was smothered and burned. The barn and its contents, including the season's crop, was destroyed.

Sunday School Rally.

A service of unusual interest will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 2 o'clock, it being the annual school rally. Rev. C. W. De A., of Trinity church, Napanee, will be present to deliver the Special music is also being provided by the school. This being a service of the church and school, the morning and evening services are withdrawn. The service extends a cordial invitation to other schools to unite with their rally service.

"OUR SOLDIER BOY"

Bravely over the sea they go,
Our soldier boys, so true;
To the front they yearned to go,
And fight the battle through.
Left their homes and loved ones,
To do their best or die!
O'er their heads, when they're low,
The Union Jack will fly.

We have learned to love the land,
And hope they'll soon come home;
They will receive a welcome,
Not with dog-eat or a stor.
It was for home and country,
For whom they went to fight,
Faced bayonet, poisonous gas,
And died for truth and right.

They are struggling in the land,
And some of the boys will stay;
They knew what was before,
But they heard their country's call;
They said, Motherland, dear land,
A land, great, glorious, and wide;
We'll help defend the Empire Hurrah, for that land across the sea.

And plant the flag on Germany;
Though the Hun may intercede,
Our stalwart sons will never yield,
Until the Empire is supreme;
Glory and love to the men,
Courage in heart, and sword;
Sons have copied their virtue,
To struggle and die for the land.

The boys of the 80th have come,
And before the war is over;
Their blood will mark a crit,
This world has never seen.
Though we are sorrowful at present,
We will ever hope and pray,
That some day we'll shout Hurrah,
Canada's sons have saved the world.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

CARPENTERS IN A CONVENT.

The convalescents in training at the Gray Nunnery.

A carpenters' workshop has just been fitted up in a wing of the Gray
Nunnery, which the Military Hospitals Commission has secured as its Central Convalescent Hospital for Montreal.
It is not an ordinary workshop with a single bench. There are rows of benches, and sets of tools to match.

At each bench, if you happen in at the right time, you will find a man at work. If you are highly critical and also highly skilled—which critics are not always—you may observe and censure plenty of defects in the men's handling of the tools. But these men are learners, and "he who makes no blunders, makes nothing." Presently they will make fewer blunders, and will be able to make something else.

The class has been started by the Military Hospitals Commission, and it is only one of a variety of ways in which wounded and otherwise invalided men are being helped to overcome their disabilities. These ways include classes in arithmetic, typewriting and English. All these will help, and for some men they are just the thing.
But carpentry is one of the most useful occupations that can be taught to fit a man for the battle of life.

And the battle of life is just beginning, the second time, for many of our wounded. They have left the ranks of peaceful labour, to join manfully in the struggle against the enemies of their country and of civilization. Now they have come back, disabled in that struggle, and some find themselves in consequence disabled also for their old occupation.

Are they to remain disabled? If they did, the country would indeed be disgraced.

But there is no reason why they should. We are in the twentieth century. For almost every disability, some remedy or compensation has been found. A very small proportion of our wounded cannot be helped by training to make an independent living.

It is not intended to make professional carpenters of all the men now learning carpentry. But skill in this will help a man in many other occupations. The first object of all that is done in a convalescent Hospital, of course, is to restore its patients to health; and interesting occupations greatly help recovery. But the Military Hospitals Commission goes further. It takes pains to discover what means of livelihood will be most suitable to each disabled man, and gives him every chance to fit himself for it, by special training when convalescence is complete.

Long Winded Discussion.

"Pa, what is meant by filibustering?"
"Talking against time, my son."
"Do you ever filibuster, pa?"
"No, my boy. With the exception of that imposed by physical exhaustion, there is no limit to the debates in this particular house."

Spiteful.

"Why do you hate him?"
"He has been knocking me to the girl I go with."
"What did he tell her?"
"What my salary is."

The Red Cross Society

The society is greatly indebted to the Misses VanLoven for their kindness in giving the recital last Friday evening, and the handsome sum of $71.65 has been handed to our treasurer to be applied on the Prisoners-of-war Fund.

Too much praise cannot be given to these two girls, not only for giving us this musical treat, but for helping to cheer the many prisoners, whose lives are indeed pitiful. We again thank the girls and wish them success in their musical career.

The society gratefully acknowledges, the sum of $5.00 from Mr. Arthur Wright, of Wallaceburg, to be applied on the proceeds of the VanLoven recital. Such kindness is greatly appreciated.

A donation of $8.00 has been received from the Church of England Woman's Auxiliary of Hawley, for which we would ask them to accept our thanks. We are also grateful to The H. E. Maddock Co., for a generous donation of towelling.

The annual meeting of the Red Cross will be held in the town hall on Saturday afternoon, September 23rd, at three o'clock. A synopsis of the year's work will be given and plans for the future discussed. Officers for the ensuing year will also be elected. The work meeting will be postponed, but the hall will be opened in the morning as usual, for distribution of work.
